INTRODUCTION

DURING the late war no official record was kept by the University of the services of Cambridge men with the Forces. Each College kept touch, so far as was possible, with the doings of its past, and present, members; and the various College records were collated and supplemented in a list initiated by the Executive Committee of The Cambridge Review and published by them from time to time. This list, the seventh and last edition of which appeared in April 1917, while the Battle of Arras was at its height, was the product of the patient and arduous work of Mr J. Austin Fabb, printer of The Cambridge Review; and, though no edition was published after the date mentioned above, Mr Fabb continued his efforts to keep the list up to date until, in December 1919, the publication of an official list was undertaken by the Syndics of the Press. The present War List is thus founded on the invaluable work of Mr Fabb, and it is fitting that the first words of this book should be a tribute to his labours.

But there remained much to be done. Mr Fabb had at no time had access to the Army List; to keep pace with the lists of casualties and distinctions alone was the utmost that human energy could compass during the war—to extract the promotions daily announced in The London Gazette had been quite out of the question. It was therefore obvious in December 1919 that, if anything like accuracy in the mere matter of rank was to be attained, it was necessary that every name should be checked with the official Service lists. This has duly been done, and after a prolonged and painful experience of the Army List and kindred publications the editor finds himself, if not confident of complete accuracy, at any rate conscious of having made some progress towards it.

There were also other problems to be tackled; and not the least of these were the three main questions: what, for the purposes of an official record, should be the definition of a Cambridge man, what should constitute "service," and what date should be regarded as marking the end of the war? Perhaps the chief difficulty in compiling a work of this nature is that of dealing with "border-line cases." No border-line can be drawn which eliminates altogether the doubtful case, nor one which, in some of its exclusions and inclusions, is wholly consistent with individual justice; the best that can be done is to make the line as clean-cut and as intelligible as possible. Before deciding the principles on which the present list should be based, the Syndics of the Press took counsel with representatives of the Colleges, and a general agreement was reached. It is hoped that the following outline, in conjunction with the List of Abbreviations, which has been drawn up with an eye to a generation unfamiliar with the naval and military common-places of to-day, will make plain to every reader both the broad principles and the details of this book.

University qualification. It was felt that, as an official record of the war services of Cambridge men, this list ought to include only those who were Cambridge men at the time of their war service. Thus the names of many hundreds who matriculated after serving in the war have been deliberately omitted, and residence prior to war service as a dividing-line has been closely adhered to, with one exception: it was decided to include those who had been admitted for the Michaelmas Term of 1914 and were prevented from coming into residence in that term only by the fact of having joined the Forces at the outbreak of war.

Service qualification. Only those who served in some branch of His Majesty's Forces are included in this list. The Army, Navy, and Air Force Lists have formed the criterion throughout, though some latitude has been used in the case of Colonial volunteer units, which, though they do not appear in the Army List, in some instances engaged in actual fighting. This ruling necessarily excludes the names of many who performed valuable, distinguished, and often dangerous services in the war; but it was felt to be the only principle that could afford a comparatively clear dividing-line.

Period of Service. For the purposes of this record, the war closes with the armistice of November 11th, 1918. No event which took place after that date has been recorded, except deaths caused by, and honours awarded for, service prior to the armistice.

RANK. The differences between substantive, temporary, and acting rank became somewhat complicated, and the terms themselves altered in meaning, during the war. This list therefore aims at giving the highest rank held for an appreciable period, irrespective of its category—honorary rank is the only kind that is specifically stated. In cases where the service included staff appointments, the highest staff appointment attained is given.

REGIMENT, etc. The individual career of nearly every officer and man in the Army included service, if not in more than one regiment, at least in more than one battalion of the same regiment. To specify each battalion was clearly impracticable; but where transfers to different regiments, or to different arms of the service, took place, they have been recorded, so far as they are known, with the highest rank held in each regiment or arm. The semi-colon is used to separate successive stages of service.

CASUALTIES. All deaths which occurred from any cause whatsoever during service with the Forces previous to the armistice are recorded with a cross against the entry. Wherever possible, the actual date of death is given; a date given in parentheses represents the date of publication of the casualty list in which the death was announced. Deaths which have taken place since the armistice are not recorded, unless they were the result of wounds or other causes directly attributable to service prior to the armistice; in a few cases where death after the armistice may have been indirectly due to war service, a footnote has been added.

Casualties due to gas-poisoning were, for the greater part of the war, included among the "wounded" in the official casualty lists; injuries due to accident, on the other hand, were not so included. The same principle has been adopted in this list.

In cases where a "(W.)" appears against the name of one who died of wounds, it refers to an occasion other than that which resulted in death.

HONOURS AND AWARDS. Distinctions gained for service in the war are shown in italics after the description of rank, regiment, etc., and are, approximately, in order of dignity and not in the order in which they were gained; pre-war distinctions are given in small capitals immediately after the surname and initials.

In compiling the present list I have received assistance from various quarters. My thanks are due first and foremost to my wife, whose patient help alone enabled me to carry through the task of checking each entry with the Army, Navy, or Air Force Lists; in the compilation of the Summary also she has borne a large share of the work. The Index is the work of Mr H. A. Parsons, of the University Press, and others of my colleagues on the staff of the Press have given me valuable advice and help. I am indebted to the Commanding Officer, the Adjutant, and the Headquarters staff of the Cambridge University Officers Training Corps for facilities readily granted to me at all times to consult their documents; and to the Registrar of the India Office for the loan of a copy of the Indian Army List. To the officials of several of the Colleges, whether Master, Fellow, or clerk, my acknowledgments are due for careful co-operation in compiling the portions of the book relating to their respective Colleges; and, last but not least, I wish to thank all those who, in answer to my appeals in the public press, sent me first-hand information of their services. I am only too conscious that, even now, this record must fall far short of completeness and accuracy, and I shall be grateful if those who discover mistakes or omissions will draw my attention to them. Finally, if any lover of statistics should feel tempted to test the accuracy of the Summary, I sincerely hope that the temptation may be too strong for him.

✠GREEN, J. L. Capt., R.A.M.C. (T.F.) (W.) 1907
V.C. "For most conspicuous devotion to duty. Although himself wounded, he went to the assistance of an officer who had been wounded and was hung up on the enemy's wire entanglements, and succeeded in dragging him to a shell hole, where he dressed his wounds, notwithstanding that bombs and rifle grenades were thrown at him the whole time. Captain Green then endeavoured to bring the wounded officer into safe cover, and had nearly succeeded in doing so when he was himself killed." Supplement to The London Gazette, 5 Aug. 1916.

✠ACKROYD, H. Capt., R.A.M.C. (W.) M.C. 1896

V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery. During recent operations Capt. Ackroyd displayed the greatest gallantry and devotion to duty. Utterly regardless of danger, he worked continuously for many hours up and down and in front of the line tending the wounded and saving the lives of officers and men. In so doing he had to move across the open under heavy machine gun, rifle and shell fire. He carried a wounded officer to a place of safety under very heavy fire. On another occasion he went some way in front of our advanced line and brought in a wounded man under continuous rifle and machine gun fire. His heroism was the means of saving many lives, and provided a magnificent example of courage, cheerfulness and determination to the fighting men in whose midst he was carrying out his splendid work. This gallant officer has since been killed in action."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 6 Sept. 1917.

V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery, devotion to duty and fine leadership during the attack at Bellenglise and Lehaucourt on September 19th, 1918. He led his battalion with great skill across the Canal du Nord through a very thick fog and under heavy fire from field and machine guns. On reaching the high ground above Bellenglise the whole attack was held up by fire of all descriptions from the front and right flank. Realising that everything depended on the advance going forward with the barrage, Col. Vann rushed up to the firing line and with the greatest gallantry led the line forward. By his prompt action and absolute contempt for danger the whole situation was changed, the men were encouraged and the line swept forward. Later, he rushed a field gun single-handed and knocked out three of the detachment. The success of the day was in no small degree due to the splendid gallantry and fine leadership displayed by this officer. Lieut.-Col. Vann, who had on all occasions set the highest example of valour, was killed near Ramicourt on 3rd October, 1918, when leading his battalion in attack."—Supplement to The London Gazette of 14 Dec. 1918.

✠DOUGALL, E. S. Capt., R.F.A. (W.) M.C. 1905

V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery and skilful leadership in the field when in command of his battery. Captain Dougall maintained his guns in action from early morning throughout a heavy concentration of gas and high-explosive shell. Finding that he could not clear the crest owing to the withdrawal of our line, Captain Dougall ran his guns on to the top of the ridge to fire over open sights. By this time our infantry had been pressed back in line with the guns. Captain Dougall at once assumed command of the situation, rallied and organised the infantry, supplied them with Lewis guns, and armed as many gunners as he could spare with rifles. With these he formed a line in front of his battery, which during this period was harassing the advancing enemy with a rapid rate of fire. Although exposed to both rifle and machine gun fire, this officer fearlessly walked about as though on parade, calmly giving orders and encouraging everybody. He inspired the infantry with his assurance that "So long as you stick to your trenches I will keep my guns here." This line was maintained throughout the day, thereby delaying the enemy's advance for over twelve hours. In the evening, having expended all its ammunition, the battery received orders to withdraw. This was done by manhandling the guns over a distance of about 800 yards of shell-cratered country, an almost impossible feat considering the ground and the intense machine gun fire. Owing to Captain Dougall's personality and skilful leadership throughout this trying day there is no doubt that a serious breach in our line was averted. This gallant officer was killed four days later whilst directing the fire of his battery."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 4 June 1918.

✠STONE, W. N. Capt., R. Fusiliers 1910

V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery when in command of a company in an isolated position 1000 yards in front of the main line and overlooking the enemy's position. He observed the enemy massing for an attack, and afforded invaluable information to Battalion Headquarters. He was ordered to withdraw his company, leaving a rearguard to cover the withdrawal. The attack developing with unexpected speed, Capt. Stone sent three platoons back and remained with the rearguard himself. He stood on the parapet with the telephone under a tremendous bombardment, observing the enemy, and continued to send back valuable information until the wire was cut by his orders. The rearguard was eventually surrounded and cut to pieces, and Capt. Stone was seen fighting to the last, till he was shot through the head. The extraordinary coolness of this heroic officer and the accuracy of his information enabled dispositions to be made just in time to save the line and avert disaster."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 13 Feb. 1918.

✠DUNVILLE, J. S. 2nd Lieut., 1st Dragoons [1914]

V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery. When in charge of a party consisting of scouts and Royal Engineers engaged in the demolition of the enemy's wire, this officer displayed great gallantry and disregard of all personal danger. In order to ensure the absolute success of the work entrusted to him, 2nd Lt. Dunville placed himself between an N.C.O. of the Royal Engineers and the enemy's fire, and, thus protected, the N.C.O. was enabled to complete a work of great importance. 2nd Lt. Dunville, although severely wounded, continued to direct his men in the wire-cutting and general operations until the raid was successfully completed, thereby setting a magnificent example of courage, determination and devotion to duty to all ranks under his command. This gallant officer has since succumbed to his wounds."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 2 Aug. 1917.

V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery, coolness and resource when in command of a Machine Gun Section. Lt. Graham accompanied the guns across open ground, under very heavy rifle and machine gun fire, and when his men became casualties, he assisted in carrying the ammunition. Although twice wounded, he continued during the advance to control his guns and was able, with one gun, to open an accurate fire on the enemy, who were massing for a counter-attack. This gun was put out of action by the enemy's rifle fire, and he was again wounded. The advancing enemy forced him to retire, but before doing so he further disabled his gun, rendering it useless. He then brought a Lewis gun into action with excellent effect till all the ammunition was expended. He was again severely wounded, and forced through loss of blood to retire. His valour and skilful handling of his guns held up a strong counter-attack which threatened to roll up the left flank of the Brigade, and thus averted what might have been a very critical situation."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 14 Sept. 1917.

ROCHDALE, Lord. Lieut.-Col., Lancs. Fus.(T.F. Res.) 1884

ROCHFORT, G. A. BOYD. Lieut., Scots Gds. 1898
V.C. "For most conspicuous bravery in the trenches between Cambrai and La Bassée on 3rd August, 1915. At 2 a.m. a German trench mortar bomb landed on the side of the parapet of the communication trench in which he stood, close to a small working party of his Battalion. He might easily have stepped back a few yards round the corner into perfect safety, but, shouting to his men to look out, he rushed at the bomb, seized it and hurled it over the parapet, where it at once exploded. There is no doubt that his splendid combination of presence of mind and courage saved the lives of many of the working party."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 1 Sept. 1915.

V.C. "During the landing from the S.S. "River Clyde" at V Beach in the Gallipoli Peninsula on the 25th April, 1915, Sub-Lieutenant Tisdall, hearing wounded men on the beach calling for assistance, jumped into the water and, pushing a boat in front of him, went to their rescue. He was, however, obliged to obtain help, and took with him on two trips Leading Seaman Malia and on other trips Chief Petty Officer Perring and Leading Seamen Curtiss and Parkinson. In all Sub-Lieutenant Tisdall made four or five trips between the ship and the shore, and was thus responsible for rescuing several wounded men under heavy and accurate fire."—Supplement to The London Gazette, 31 March, 1916.
